

Responsibility is mainly assigned to the society/group most strongly related to the international conference in question.

Breakdown of IEICE's modes of involvement in international conferences

Application recipient (decision-making organization)	Mode	Character ("sponsoring parent body " refers to either the IEICE headquarters or the society/group)	Financial affairs	Fee for borrowing the IEICE's name (relative to surplus balance)	Decision-making organization Approved by application form/confirmed by report form	Use of English name "The Institute of Electronics, Information and Communication Engineers, «insert name of society/group»" "«Insert name of research expert committee»" Research Expert Committee of the Institute of Electronics, Information and Communication Engineers, «insert name of society/group» society/group"	Use of English name "The Institute of Electronics, Information and Communication Engineers"	Use of logo
Society/group	(1) Promoter ("sponsored by", etc.)	The IEICE assumes full responsibility for holding the conference, and is the sole promoter when the sponsoring parent body is the IEICE alone. Note that responsibility for the practicalities of the event lies with the coordinating organization.	After the balance of accounts has been settled at the coordinating organization, it can be transferred to the IEICE accounts.	30% of surplus earnings remitted to decision-making organization	International committee of the society/group (or an organization with corresponding functions) ↓	○	Request from society/group to headquarters	IEICE and society/group logos may be used together
	(2) Joint promoter ("cosponsored by", etc.)	The IEICE assumes a level of responsibility proportional to the extent of its joint support for the conference, and is a joint promoter when there are joint sponsoring parent bodies. Note that responsibility for the practicalities of the event lies with the coordinating organization. The IEICE's involvement may be classified as primary or as of equal importance or the like, depending on the extent of the IEICE's joint burden, or it may be classified on the basis of the share of responsibility.	Handled by the coordinating organization separately from the IEICE's accounting processes.	30% of the amount corresponding to the IEICE's share of the liabilities remitted to decision-making organization	Reports to the decision-making organization of the society/group, or to the board of directors where necessary	○	Request from society/group to headquarters	IEICE and society/group logos may be used together
	(3) Participating promoter ("in participation with", etc.)	The IEICE does not assume responsibility for all the practicalities of the event, but takes on part of the burden of work relating to papers and dispatches from committee members to the coordinating organization or the like.	/	/	International committee of the society/group (or an organization with corresponding functions)	○	/	IEICE and society/group logos may be used together

	(4) Supporting or backing roles ("in cooperation with", etc.)	The IEICE does not assume responsibility for all the practicalities of the event, but cooperates on matters such as informing its members of the event proposals. The IEICE's role can be described as either "support" or "backing".				○		IEICE and society/group logos may be used together
Headquarters	(1) Promoter ("sponsored by", etc.)	The IEICE assumes full responsibility for holding the conference, and is the sole promoter when the sponsoring parent body is the IEICE alone. Note that responsibility for the practicalities of the event lies with the coordinating organization.	After the balance of accounts has been settled at the coordinating organization, it can be transferred to the IEICE accounts.	30% of surplus earnings remitted to decision-making organization	International committee		○	IEICE logo
	(2) Joint promoter ("cosponsored by", etc.)	The IEICE assumes a level of responsibility proportional to the extent of its joint support for the conference, and is a joint promoter when there are joint sponsoring parent bodies. Note that responsibility for the practicalities of the event lies with the coordinating organization. The IEICE's involvement may be classified as primary or as of equal importance or the like, depending on the extent of the IEICE's joint burden, or it may be classified on the basis of the share of responsibility.	Handled by the coordinating organization separately from the IEICE's accounting processes.	30% of the amount corresponding to the IEICE's share of the liabilities remitted to decision-making organization	Reports to the board of directors		○	IEICE logo
	(3) Participating promoter ("in participation with", etc.)	The IEICE does not assume responsibility for all the practicalities of the event, but takes on part of the burden of work relating to papers and dispatches from committee members to the coordinating organization or the like.			Investigating directors		○	IEICE logo
	(4) Supporting or backing roles ("in cooperation with", etc.)	The IEICE does not assume responsibility for all the practicalities of the event, but cooperates on matters such as informing its members of the event proposals. The IEICE's role can be described as either "support" or "backing".			Report to the board of directors		○	IEICE logo