

Yoshihiko Horio currently is a professor at Research Institute of Electrical Communication, Tohoku University. He received the B.E., M.E., and Ph.D. degrees in electrical engineering from Keio University, Yokohama, Japan, in 1982, 1984, and 1987, respectively. From 1987 to 2015, he was with Tokyo Denki University where he was a professor from 2000. He is an Honorary Professor of Tokyo Denki University from 2020. From April 1992 to March 1994, he was a Visiting Professor at Center for Telecommunications Research, Columbia University, New York, U.S.A. From 1999 to 2002, he was a vice president of Epoch Technologies, LLC, U.S.A. He was the first President of NOLTA Society, the Institute of Electronics, Information and Communication Engineers (IEICE) in 2014 and 2015. From 1997, he has been a Vice President of Catalyst Foundation, U.S.A. From 2017 to 2021, he was a Director of Japanese Neural Network Society. He is currently Fellow, IEICE, and Editor-in-Chief of Nonlinear Theory and Its Applications, IEICE journal. He received the Lifetime Achievement Award, NOLTA Society, IEICE in 2016. His current research interest includes neuromorphic and brainmorphic hardware systems, VLSI information processing systems based on complex physical dynamics, and high-order brain-inspired VLSI systems with consciousness, self, and embodiment.
