

2nd Korean-Japan Joint Workshop on Pattern Recognition (KJPR2007)

Hosted by
KISS CVPR and IEICE PRMU

October 25-26, 2007
Hotel Matsushima Daikansou, Matsushima, Japan

KJPR2007 is the second Korean-Japan joint workshop on pattern recognition organized by leading scientific societies SIG-CVPR of KISS, Korea and PRMU of IEICE, Japan. Building on the success of the previous workshop held in Cheju (Korea) as a first step towards an Asian-wide conference on pattern recognition, KJPR2007 will give opportunities not only for sharing and exchanging original research results and practical experiences but also for bringing together researchers and practitioners from both Korea and Japan.

Topics of interest

The scope of the workshop is not limited to a specific area but covers a broad range of theories and applications of pattern recognition, including but not limited to various media understanding such as video and documents, bio-informatics, pattern recognition technologies for security and ubiquitous media, human interaction, learning theories and their applications, robotics and pattern recognition.

Workshop format

This will be a two-day workshop with the following sessions: keynote lectures, an organized session and general sessions all of which will be presented in English.

The organized session consists of presentation about the topic "Future Society Opened-Up by Pattern Recognition and Computer Vision" by guest speakers from Korea and Japan.

Submitted papers will be presented in the general sessions.
